

Traditional Jodhpuri Food

The land of Marwar or Jodhpur is one of India's famous tourist destination and the second-largest city in Rajasthan. With its narrow streets, slopey terrain, Havelis, and sea blue houses, this dusty desert city has expanded over the years. The old and new Jodhpur now exist together separated by a wall. The rich history adds character to this blue city. Apart from its rich history, its contribution to the fashion industry, its maze of bright blue houses, street food in Jodhpur is also very popular among tourists and locals. The generous serving of ghee with almost every meal and snack is one thing that stands out. Jodhpur offers you a combination of spicy street food and delectable desserts and is definitely the one place you need to check off your list if you're a foodie. So whenever you travel here, make sure you snack on these delicious Marwari treats while you are checking out the city's many attractions. Here is our list of 12 amazing street food in Jodhpur you must enjoy.
